

Things that could not have happened
without Free Speech.

- Philosophy.
- The abolition of Slavery in Great Britain and its colonies.
- The Song “Amazing Grace”.
- All Scientific advancement.
- Rock and Roll.
- The Civil Rights Movement.
- The Liberation of Women.
- The prevention of War, to the limited extent that has been successful.
- The use of disinfectant in childbirth.

All culture results from sordid intellectual combat.

Good ideas are always offensive. --Paul Elliott

So you're saying.....

Fake reasons for censorship

The “Carthago delenda est” excuse.

Our enemies, they say, are so evil, that any lie expedient is acceptable to defeat them. But our necessary lies may be exposed by truth, therefore, we are justified in censoring our opponents and enemies. This is also the Marxist definition of truth defense.

Do you trust those who want to censor?

Whenever a censorship regime is instituted, there is a mass scramble of reprehensible people, struggling for the evil power of censorship. Do you trust them?

